

What men long for
Tjechie
01:45:00

The main male character is charismatic but cynical Karel Král. Sometimes sarcastic, sometimes even sexist, but attractive enough to seduce women. He works as an editor-in-chief of well-known magazine for men and he's a tough but successful boss. But he kinda sucks in his personal life. He has fights with his ex-wife and his daughter Julia despises him. But suddenly Karel's life is changing rapidly. He loses his job and his place is taken by a young and attractive woman, his ex-wife and daughter don't want to speak with him anymore and his car is damaged in an accident. Karel is literally down, he drunks with his best friend Cestmír, to whom he confides that he wants to become a woman, because "women have easier life than men". The next morning Karel wakes up, but he's not Karel anymore. Thanks to his wish he became a woman... or more accurate, his body turned into one. Karel, now Karla, has to deal not just with his new looks, but with his understanding towards women as well.
